

New video for Corporate Parents on how to improve health services for children in care

- Watch Corporate parents: Taking it to the next level- Getting Health Services right for young people in care at <http://youtu.be/nKmdJgXKiBM>

A new animated video, the second in a series of films produced by the National Children's Bureau and A National Voice, highlights what makes a health service accessible to young people in care.

Taking it to the Next Level shares the learning from a series of health themed events around England involving corporate parents and Children in Care Council members.

The video highlights that services need to understand and be responsive and flexible to the needs and experiences of children in care, some of whom may find it initially difficult to engage with services.